Project Background Information

Pacman is one of the most popular arcade games of all time, and was first released by Namco in 1980. The aim of the game is to guide a small character around a maze eating dots and fruit, while avoiding four ghosts with different personalities.

The objective of this project is to implement Pacman from scratch, and to try and make your version look and feel as close as possible to the original game.

If time permits, the team should also add some novel features to the game of their own invention. This project will involve learning about graphics, sound, and retro game programming. It should also be a lot of fun!
